Dear Counsel,

As I have stated multiple times, my patience with your client's actions are at a head. If, by tomorrow, I do not see full and complete submission to my demands, I will consider this failure a statement of intent by your client and proceed accordingly. This course of action is not desirable. I wish to move on. But your client, apparently, does not.

I do not care about holidays or weekends or for that matter hours, I work 24-7-365. So, as far as I am concerned, every day is as good as the other. I believe the law doesn't distinguish either.

Best regards, and best of luck,
Arjun Vasan
